Secrets to Be Guarded.

To tell our own secrets is generally folly, but that folly is without guilt; to communicate those with which we are entrusted is always treachery, and treachery for the most part combined with folly.—Johnson.

Pleasure and Pains of Power.

To know the pains of power we must go to those who have it; to know its pleasures we must go to those who are seeking it. The pains of power are real, its pleasures imaginary.—C. C. Colton.

Wonder If He's Crazy?

Now a scientist announces that kissing is a sign of insanity. But that would appear to be a gross exaggeration. At the worst it can scarcely be considered anything more than a symptom or emotional intoxication.

MEDITATION.

The art of meditation may be exercised at all hours and in all places, and men of genius in their walks, at table and amid assemblies, turning the eye of the mind inward, can form an artificial solitude, retired amid a crowd, calm amid distraction and wise amid folly.—Disraeli.
